Tennessee Union Probe Calls in More Witnesses

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators investigating labor violence called witnesses today for testimony about the dynamiting of a Knoxville, Tenn., grocery store while it was involved in a dispute with the Teamsters Union.

B. B. Powers, owner of the store, was summoned as the lead-off witness. Other's described as having first hand knowledge of who was responsible for the dynamiting were listed to follow.

Robert F. Kennedy, chief counsel of the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee, said two Nashville police officers "who have some information about the Teamsters Union having dynamite equipment" also would testify.

The committee, as part of a broad inquiry into illegal or improper activities in the labor-management field, is currently probing what Chairman McClellan D- Ark has called "a shocking pattern of deliberate goon squad violence" in Tennessee and neighboring states.

Kennedy said in advance of today's hearing that damage running into "the thousands of dollars" was done to Powers' grocery store by a dynamite blast on Sept. 6, 1956.

At the time, he said, Powers was engaged in a dispute with the Teamsters over this handling of Coca-Cola while a strike was going on at the local Coca-Cola plant.

Mrs. Lola Freels, former secretary to Teamsters Local No. 821 in Knoxville, testified yesterday that Teamsters terrorists seemingly escaped punishment for dynamiting and their crimes because of political influence.

Hal H. Clements, district attorney general prosecutor at Knoxville, told a reporter later he was "going to put her story before the first session of a grand jury we can have."

But Clements said "There is no political law enforcement" in his jurisdiction and that the men Mrs. Freels had named as having committed crimes were people who oppose him politically.

Mrs. Freels swore among other things that the still unsolved shooting up of two trucks on a Tennessee highway in June 1955 was the work of W. A. Hard-Hearing Smitty Smith, a Teamster official from Nashville. She also testified that Smith was brought to Knoxville by W. J. Reynolds, then president of Local 821, to do the job.

Witness in Union Case Shows Wound

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) of the Senate Rackets Committee made an unusual request: He wanted the witness, Roy Byrd, to remove his shirt.

Grimacing and reddening slightly, the 30-year-old Cincinnati truck official obliged — baring an ugly scar on his right shoulder inflicted by a bullet during a Teamsters' strike last year.

Photographers quickly huddled around him, shooting close-ups of the slender bare-backed man.

Then McClellan told him gravely: "You'll have to carry that disability all of your life, all because your employer wouldn't sign a blackjack contract."

"This is the penalty you paid for standing up for your rights as an American."

The occasion was the investigation yesterday, by the committee, of Byrd's story of being shot from ambush while driving a truck during a strike by Teamsters Local 821, Knoxville, Tenn., against his employer, Newman & Pemberton Co., of Knoxville. Nobody to his knowledge, he said, was ever arrested for the shooting, which put him in the hospital for 29 days.

The strike for recognition of the union as bargaining agent was abandoned as a failure. Byrd, now manager of the trucking firm's Cincinnati terminal, unable to work, says, ever to drive another truck because of the weakened right arm.

Reviews Radio Station's First Day, 10 Years of Growth

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Hope, Ark., Friday, Dec. 12, 1947
... History was about to be made at 12 o'clock on that 12th day of the 12th month.

The clocked ticked away... three minutes until... two minutes... one. Then, noon! And Radio Station KXAR was on the air.

The first sounds heard in that initial broadcast were the melodic strains of Prim's "Chanson." A one minute historical sketch followed and also the dedication by Alex H. Washburn, president of the Hope Broadcasting Company.

Representing the Hope Ministerial Alliance, Rev. S. A. Whitlow gave the invocation. Transcribed greetings were heard from Senator John McClellan, Senator J. W. Fulbright, and Congressman Owen Harris.

The program was then turned over to Marshall Hendrix, program director.

Less than three weeks later, under the station manager, Robert Mitchell, KXAR rendered outstanding public service with its on-the-spot news coverage of the tornado disaster in Cotton Valley, La. For this work, the new station received national recognition and a top award in radio and TV, the George Peabody Award.

To this writer's knowledge, KXAR is the only radio station in Arkansas ever to have received the George Peabody Award.

Many difficulties have been met and overcome in the few years that KXAR has been on the air. For instance, the first remote broadcast of a basketball tournament in Emmet had to be done with a short wave transmitter, because telephone lines were unavailable at the point of broadcast.

Since then, advancements in this type of broadcasting have been added to KXAR's facilities. The latest of these is a mobile transmitter called the "Cruisecaster."

There have been other kinds of problems, too. One occurred during a "Man-on-the-Street" interview in which the M. O. congratulated a young lady for her recent engagement. Her calm reply left him speechless.

"I would like to take this opportunity," she said, "to make public the fact that our engagement has been broken."

As a broadcaster confronted with this situation, what would have been your next comment?

Only two people on KXAR's staff today were members of the staff on opening day. They are the bookkeeper, Mrs. J. M. Tidwell and L. P. Towler, who is now station manager. In 1947, he was its chief engineer. Another engineer at KXAR today, Norman Bradford, began work there only six weeks after it opened.

In its ten years of operation, KXAR has indeed been "The Voice of Southwest Arkansas."

reaching all parts of that area of the state.

As Sam McWhorter, program director, says, "The latest in news and entertainment can be found at the 1490 spot on your radio dial."

The service will be operated in conjunction with Scandinavian Airlines. Flights between Moscow and Copenhagen at first will be on a weekly basis.

Indonesia Is Expelling All Dutch Subjects

By JAMES WILDE

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Indonesia began expelling Dutch subjects today in its hard-fisted campaign to win West New Guinea, an Indonesian employes throughout this island republic were seizing Dutch business enterprises.

Information Minister Sudjojono has no first name—said the Dutch Embassy had been told to begin evacuation of Dutch residents at once and about 100 employees of KLM airline and their families—were the first to get their orders.

Justice Minister Gustaf Mangemong said the immediate "get out order" meant "within three days, if I had my way, but that is impossible."

One source said there are 40,000 Dutch nationals here and that all would be expelled except skilled technicians. About two-thirds of those marked to leave are Eurasians who were born here and have lived here all of their lives.

All will have to leave most of their property here. Dutch financial interests here are estimated to be worth a billion dollars.

The expulsion order was announced as a five Indonesian heaped pressure on the Netherlands to yield West New Guinea, the half-island which the Dutch government retained after granting independence to the rest of the East Indies in 1949.

Criticizes Paper That Scoffed U. S.

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Three Vienna newspapers criticized today those who scoff at the U.S. rocket program and the delay in launching an earth satellite.

They also assailed Austrian and other Western newspapers for their satirical comment on U.S. difficulties with the satellite.

The Conservative People's party paper Das Kleine Volksblatt said the feeling of depression which the fault-finders are spreading makes these people unconscious allies of the Communists.

The Conservative Neue Tagesszeitung referred to "Moscow's perfect blackout technique" and demanded: "How many failures did the Soviets experience in tests before they got their Sputniks up?"

The Independent Die Presse observed the Russians also had to overcome many difficulties before their rockets worked and added: "The real fact is that with or without an earth satellite, the United States is without dispute the world's top ranking industrial power."

Vienna's anti-Communist Volk Press carried a banner headline yesterday saying: "United States Disgrace. Sputnik (the late Sputnik). Doesn't Start." Newspapers in West Germany and elsewhere also were critical.

Jap Leftists Want Return of Okinawa

TOKYO (AP)—Six hundred Japanese rallied today to demand return of Okinawa to Japan and protest what they called American interference of the government of the U.S.-occupied island's capital city, Naha.

The group adopted a five-point resolution criticizing changes in Naha ordinances which made possible the ouster of leftist Mayor Kamejiri Senaga.

More than 1,000 students held a separate rally and 150 marched to the American Embassy. Two hundred police guarded the embassy compound and there was no violence.

Hope Senior Class in First 20 in State

Hope High School's 1957 Graduation class ranked among the highest twenty schools in the state according to a letter received by Mr. James H. Jones, superintendent.

Each year all Arkansas seniors are given an English and Mental Ability test. Their scores were studied last summer at the University of Arkansas with Dr. R. M. Roelofs and Dr. Imon E. Bruce in charge.

Dr. Bruce said, "In general, we found that the seniors in the larger schools make a mean score much higher than the ones in the smaller school districts. We also found a positive relationship between the expenditures per pupil and school mean score in districts of comparable size, except in those with 350 enumerates or less."

Red Control in N. Korea Not Great

TOKYO (AP)—North Korea's Communist Premier indicated today that the Reds' control over the peninsula is not as tight as the party would like.

Hope Experiment Station Expands, Gets New Name

The Fruit and Truck Branch of the University of Arkansas Agricultural Experiment Station isn't only being reclassified and grown-up for growing additional crops, it has a new name — Southwest Branch Experiment Station.

Dr. John W. White, associate director, who made the announcement, said need for a new name became evident as the Hope Station's scope and program have broadened to keep pace with the changing type of agriculture in the area.

Located on Old U.S. Highway 47 in Hempstead County about 3 miles northeast of Hope, the station was organized in 1927 for research work primarily with fruit and truck crops. It is one of a system of Branch Stations of the Arkansas Agricultural Experiment Station established about the state from funds provided by the Arkansas Legislature.

Cecil M. Blitt, a graduate of the University of Arkansas with Masters Degrees in Horticulture and a former vocational agriculture teacher, has been in charge of the 185-acre "laboratory" since 1946.

To meet cattleman's need, Mr. Blitt said the 30-year-old station recently expanded its pasture program by leasing 10 acres for experiment — 5 acres of Blackland prairie in Hempstead County and 5 acres of Red River bottom in Miller County.

Researchers will first study small plots for an indication of pasture species best suited for grazing trials, which they plan to establish later.

In the Blackland trials, agronomists will seed winter small grains and winter legumes in established pastures. They will compare these crops with plantings in a prepared seedbed. Another plot will be left undisturbed to check effects of sod seeding on the yield of permanent pasture sod.

Scientists will observe permanent pasture plots in the Red River bottom under irrigated and non-irrigated conditions. They will compare Sudan grass, millets and Johnsongrass for summer supplemental pastures.

A program for controlling bitterweeds, goatweeds and other pasture weeds will be initiated on land attached to the station and on outlying locations.

Forestry is becoming more important in Southwest Arkansas as farmers divert crop land to tree production, according to F. M. Meade, associate forester. Foresters have annually cut a 20-acre farm woodlot at the Hope Station to reveal what it would yield for a farmer.

In a species evaluation test, four Southern pines — loblolly and short leaf (which are native to Arkansas) longleaf and slash — are grown side by side for comparison in growth and how they withstand insect and disease attack.

Researchers started 15 years ago a spacing study of native pines to compare yields from four spacings. They planted trees 4 feet apart each way, 5x5, 6x6 and 7x7 feet. This experiment indicates that trees need room to grow. Trees spaced 4 feet apart had to be thinned before they were big enough for pulpwood. Tree scientists recommend a 6 by 6 foot spacing.

Stands of pines are mixed in other trials to see if different species will grow satisfactorily together. Researchers are pretty well convinced that you shouldn't mix varieties because some species grow so fast they crowd out other trees.

One project to help farmers control insects is a search for cotton plants that tolerate boll weevils. Last year investigators tested 327 lines of exotic plants and hybrid strains. They spaced the plants so they could observe each and seeded the area with weevils. Entomologists inspected infested fruit from each line. If they find a line sufficiently resistant to boll weevils, they will eventually release it to farmers.

Bee keepers around the state have prompted research in agriculture. So, a bee culture project has been reactivated. Researchers will note bees' sources of nectar and pollen. They will record daily weights of colonies throughout the active season to determine periods of greatest nectar flow. Bee raisers will use this information for seasonal management practices such as locating apiaries.

Numerous other projects are underway at the Southwest Branch Experiment Station to benefit consumers as well as farmers. Space here doesn't permit telling about each. For a first-hand view of the work going on there, you are always welcome to go in and look around.

State Taking Bids on 209 New Cars

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Bids on 209 new automobiles will be opened Dec. 20 at the state purchasing agent's office.

Purchasing Agent Mack Sturgis said 1957 models will be traded in on 153 of the autos and 56 new vehicles will be purchased outright for use by the expanded State Police.

Sturgis said he considered it good practice for the state to trade cars regularly if the price was right since such a practice saves on repair and tire costs.

Bankers Still See 1958 as a Good Year

NEW YORK (AP)—Neither a soggy stock market nor the qualms of some bankers can stay the business optimists today in their year-end practice of forecasting a better year dawning.

Quite a number see 1958 showing an over-all gain for the economy. Even more believe their own industry or company will forge ahead. Let's push aside the gloom of the many and look today at some who are more cheery.

The gross national product—the dollar total of the nation's output of goods and services—will climb from this year's estimated 435 billion dollars to a whopping 460 billion in 1958 in the opinion of W. W. Morris, director of Market research for Westinghouse Electric. He adds that his own industry should gain with heavy capital goods showing a moderate increase and appliance sales up 4 per cent.

William C. Carlin, economist for Republic Steel, sees the "national goods industry today in a fairly shallow trough between two enormous waves of expansion."

The nation can move into 1958 with the bounce of optimism in its step, says J. O. Wright, Ford Motor vice president who is general manager of its Ford Division. He believes the Pentagon, which has been holding back because of an economy wave, will hand out a flood of new defense orders early in the year.

Not to be outdone by this, Wright's opposite number at General Motors—E. N. Cole, a vice president and general manager of the Chevrolet Division—says the overall strength and vitality of the economy should support an "extremely strong" automobile market.

The Aluminum industry, currently with an oversupply of metal on its hands—is also optimistic of the future. Richard S. Reynolds Jr., president of Reynolds Metals, says new uses being developed will boost consumption by 1½ billion pounds within the next three years, while increased consumption for existing products will add another billion to the total.

Reaction to Failure of U. S. Satellite

By VERN HAUGHLAND

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Military and scientific personnel planned today to conduct a series of conferences to find out what caused the failure of this country's giant Vanguard test rocket.

The missile, 72 feet long, barely managed to get off the ground yesterday before it exploded in a huge display of fire and smoke.

The men in charge of the spectacular launching attempt want to know just what happened to the Vanguard rocket that carried a tiny earth satellite in its nose, and why.

Steps also were under way to prepare for flight a new test satellite identical to the one that met misfortune on the launching pad here Friday, just before noon.

Already on hand, said Vanguard executive J. Paul Walsh, is another complete three-stage Marlin rocket, a twin of the one that blew up on an attempted vertical takeoff yesterday.

"We're going to have the same team in 1958 that we had in 1957," he said. "They are the ones who are going to have to produce our missiles and satellites. It can't be done by congressional action or administrative changes. It's going to take time."

Chairman Russell (D-Ga) of the Senate Armed Services Committee told newsmen the satellite's flop "dramatizes the importance of putting our best brains and resources into this missile program." Russell called the Cape Canaveral development "a grievous blow to our already waning world prestige."

In Bonham, Tex., Speaker of the House Rayburn (D-Tex.) said "I do trust they will put our scientists and engineers to work so we may be brought to the forefront" in scientific achievement.

In Amarillo, Tex., Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) said his Senate committee's subcommittee will ask for a full report on the satellite launching explosion. The subcommittee has been investigating the U. S. Missile-Satellite programs in the light of Russian technological advances. Its next meeting is set for Dec. 13.

Top Defense Department officials indicated no great alarm at the satellite launching failure.

As he left for Paris to attend a NATO meeting, Secretary of Defense McElroy said "Of course it was disappointing, but it was not too surprising because it was our first try."

McElroy said the Navy's Vanguard satellite project is "in very good hands," adding: "We will proceed under plans previously made."

The Army has been ordered to prepare for a satellite launching, using its Jupiter-C Research rocket. McElroy said it is very unlikely the Army would launch a satellite before the Navy's Vanguard scientists mount another launching test. There were indications any Army launching effort could not come for some weeks.

Deputy secretary of Defense Donald A. Quarles said "We of course regret the failure but regard it as an incident in the perfection of the Vanguard satellite system."

Quarles said that "since military rocketry was not involved we feel that this incident has no bearing on the program for the development of the intermediate range and intercontinental ballistic missiles, which are continuing to make fine progress."

U. S. Missile Unit Arrives in Formosa

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Vice Adm. Austin K. Doyle today disclosed a second American guided missile unit has arrived on Formosa.

Like the unit based on the Chinese Nationalist island since early May, the new arrivals are equipped with medium-range Matador missiles.

Matadors can carry nuclear warheads, but there has been no indication that such warheads have been brought to Formosa.

Indonesia Is Warned by the British

LONDON (AP)—Britain warned Indonesia today that expulsion of Dutch nationals from the country would be harmful to the Indonesian government and create an unfavorable impression everywhere.

The Indonesian ambassador in London was told by the Foreign Office that Britain hoped any expulsion order would be reconsidered.

Shortly after Ambassador Ratu Suropto called at the Foreign Office at his own request. A Foreign Office there are conflicting reports as to action being taken against Dutch nationals in Indonesia.

Department Store Sales Drop Sharply

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Department store sales in the Eighth Federal Reserve District last week dropped 21 per cent from the corresponding week a year ago, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported.

The bank pointed out, however, that stores were open one day less last week because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

The following cities in the Eighth District all suffered sales losses: St. Louis, 23 per cent; Louisville, 22 per cent; Little Rock, 18 per cent, and Memphis, 11 per cent.

Seven smaller district cities saw their dollar volume slid 24 per cent.

Doris Day plays the role of "Babe" Williams, the cutie who can belt out a song and make love on a porch swing with equal facility. Doris' leading man is John Raitt, whose strong good looks are likely to bounce impressive young ladies right out of their seats. "The Pajama Game" is Raitt's first important motion picture. He is among the top favorite New York stage performers, and highly admired for his creation of the Billy Bigelow role in Rogers and Hammerstein's "Carousel."

In Warner Color, "The Pajama Game" was directed by Stanley Donen. George Abbott and Richard Bissell wrote the screenplay. It is a Warner Bros. presentation.

DOROTHY DIX
It Is Very Unfair to Fool With a Girl's Affections

Dear Dorothy Dix: Will it break a 22 year old girl's heart if she falls in love with me and finds that I will never marry her? I am not in love with her. I am just being friendly to her. She does not have any friends and few attentions from those she has. I don't begrudge the hours spent with her, so am not hurrying myself.

MARTIN L. I commend you for considering the girl's side of the matter as well as your own. Most of the men who are attentions are without intentions are concerned solely with their own getaway and never give a thought to the harm they have done the girl.

Of course, girls whose affections have been trifled with, as the old phrase goes, do not die of broken hearts. But their faith in men has been shattered. The glamour of love are gone from them forever. It is a terrible thing for a man to rob a girl of these and to fill her heart so full of love for him that there will never be room in it for any other man. Plenty of girls who get over first love marriages, but they have only the cold ashes of affection to give their lovers.

Consider, also, how unfair a girl you are giving a girl. You are spoiling her chances of making a good marriage when you do not mean to marry her yourself. You know that if you take up all of her time and attention, if you are seen out with her every where, that you keep other men away from her because they naturally assume you are engaged to her.

The only honorable thing for a man to do when he finds a girl is falling in love with him and he does not return her affection, is to keep away from her. Force her to realize that her case is hopeless.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm going steady with a boy from out of town, but think I might have a chance to go back with the fellow

I dated last year. I like him better, but how can I tell my present boy friend that I'm breaking up with him?

NANCY Dear Nancy: A wise girl doesn't burn all her bridges. Keep both fires, but out the steady dating fire. In simple language, tell the boy you aren't interested in going steady, but would like to have them both as friends.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Although considered attractive and good company I've never had many dates. Now I've met a boy I like very much, an he's asked me out. Trouble is he's very much interested in sports, a subject about which I know nothing. How can I hold his interest? MISSY

Dear Missy: Learn! Read the sports pages of a newspaper, magazine articles, get some books from the library on basketball and hockey (the season's sports), and learn to discuss them intelligently. In no time at all you'll find yourself quite solid on sports and may even outdo the boy friend.

SOPHIA Dear Dorothy Dix: This summer I met and fell in love with (I think) a soldier stationed some distance away. He was very attentive at the time; we kept up a steady and increasingly fervent correspondence, in which he frequently mentioned marriage, though I never pursued the topic. Now it's been over a month since I've heard from him, though I write every day. Do you think I've lost him? If so, how do I get him back?

Dear Sophia: Write one last letter, tell the boy you assume he wants to drop the correspondence (what was your first hint), and you've appreciated his friendship, but since the idea of a one-sided letter-writing thing isn't your idea of fun, you think it best to terminate this angle of your association. Tell him, also, that you'll be glad to see him when he gets home. Don't seal all loopholes—just in case.

HAND-PICKED for MURDER
By Robert Martin

THE STORY: Ambrose Lott and Hugo Howell made an error when they went to their rooms. Ambrose went to sleep in Hugo's room and is murdered. Hugo has been an obnoxious guest at the Harbor House and as a result Jim believes the murderer snubbed the wrong man with an ice pick.

At 1 a.m. I sat drinking black coffee in Chief Campbell's little office. Gus, the young cop, was there, and a state trooper named Morris, a technician from the barracks. He said, "Chief, this is your bailiwick, but our facilities are at your disposal."

"Thanks," the chief said. He looked at me and said in a complaining voice, "Just who was this Ambrose Lott? Do we have to make a sink about it?"

I shrugged. "It's murder and you're the law. Lott was a friend of Howell's—used to work for him. That's all I know about it. It wasn't quite all, I thought, guilty. I hadn't forgotten the blow in my head and horrifying dip in the lake, or the fact I'd taken from Lott. But I didn't see any point in complicating things, not at this stage. It was my personal problem."

"The way I see it," the chief said, "we've got to work from Howell's angle. The killer was after Howell but got Lott by mistake. Who would want to kill Howell?"

"Maybe me," I said grimly. "He's 100 per cent slob, even if he is a client."

The chief frowned and pulled say this. "He said, 'or even think it. But Wayne Howell must hate his father, especially after that scene in the bar tonight. Howell was pretty rough on him.'"

The state trooper hunched over the table and said incredulously, "You mean maybe the boy wanted to kill his father? Why—why that's fantastic!"

"Particled," the chief said. "I snook my head. 'No. Forget that angle.' Then I hesitated, thinking that I'd have to reveal sooner or later what I'd been thinking. I hated it, because I liked Otto, the bartender, but I couldn't forget the cold hate and rage in his eyes at Howell's bullying. And I couldn't forget the ice pick in Otto's hand as he had jabbed viciously at the frozen ice cubes. We hadn't questioned Otto because he had not been available and presumably was off duty at rooms over on South Main. Just a minute, I'll give you the number." He turned and thumbed a phone book. "Two-fifty-four—Mrs. Harrington. She's a widow and rents rooms to tourists."

CHAPTER XVIII

It was a big white frame house on a corner with a wide front porch. A dim light burned in a small foyer behind the glass front door. As I started up the walk to the porch, a black sedan, dark new, came up the street, turned into a drive beside the house and stopped. A man got out and in the glow from the corner street light I saw that it was Otto. I called to him softly and moved across the dew-wet grass. He stopped and waited silently.

When I reached him I saw he was dressed in a white shirt, dark tie and light slacks. A coat was folded over one arm. "Oh," he said, surprise in his voice. "Mr. Bennett."

"Otto, I'd like to talk with you a little."

"Of course," he said quietly. "I took a deep breath. 'About Hugo Howell—' and Ambrose Lott."

"Howell? I know him, of course." His voice took on a hard edge. "But Ambrose Lott..."

"Howell's friend," I said. "He was with Howell in the bar tonight."

"Oh," he hesitated, and in the dim light I saw that his eyes were puzzled. "Would you like to come up to my room?"

I shook my head. "We can talk here." I hesitated, and then said, "Otto, I want you to understand that this is just routine. I wanted to talk to you before the police do."

"The police?"

"The man named Lott is dead. He was found murdered in his room at the hotel this evening."

"He started a little. 'Lott? Murdered?'"

I nodded, watching him. "He and Howell were both drunk tonight—you know that. Shortly after you left they both went upstairs and apparently got their rooms mixed—they are, side by side—and each went to sleep in the other's bed. It looks like the murderer thought he was killing Howell. The two men are about the same size, it was dark and Lott was in Howell's bed. The police have questioned all the hotel employees who were on duty—all except you. You left at six o'clock?"

"I—I don't understand. . . . Yes, I left at six."

"Just routine, Otto," I said gently. "Like I told you: You're my friend, and I just wanted to warn you that Chief Campbell will probably talk to you in the morning."

"That's kind of you," he said gently. "But I know nothing."

I said carefully, "Lott was killed with an ice pick. It entered his heart."

He seemed to shiver slightly. "We think the killer was after Howell, as I told you. Can you prove where you were from six o'clock on last night?"

He gave me a thin smile. "You mean, do I have a—an alibi? Why would I want to kill Mr. Lott?"

"Mr. Howell," I said gently. "He was the intended victim. You hate, don't you?"

Hope Junior, Senior High Honor Roll

With the issuing of report cards in November some startling facts were revealed with the comparison of nine weeks' honors and Iowa test statistics. According to the test results, 100 students in Hope Junior High School were capable of maintaining merit roll averages; and out of these 40 could have made straight "A's."

On the whole, Hope nearly lived up to expectations, having 95 out of 100 making "B's" or above. But from the 42 students capable of maintaining "A's," only 14 hit the mark. This sharply indicates that some of those having the ability to make "A's" are not doing so, but instead, lack in the desire to produce top grades and are coasting on "B's."

Apparently the 12th grade is suffering from "senioritis." Out of 37 who should be on top, 30 made it. But out of 19 students who should have made straight "A's," only one, Lanell Fuller, did. Oliver Adams, Judy Arnold, Della Barwick, Carolyn Brooks, Lola Cagle, Morris Cottingham, Norma Jean Cox, Mary Eppley, Sheila Foster, Linda Gilbert, Dixie Green, Joe Hampton, Diane Helms, Billy Hicks, Glenda Huckabee, Jo Ann Huett, Jack King, Alice Neal, Jo Jo Owens, David Pearson, Tommy Polk, Barbara Powell, Marilyn Reece, Betty Restroft, Jan Robinson, Charlotte Sasser, Mary Jean Sparks, Carolyn Strong, and Royce Welsinger made the "B" merit roll.

The juniors hit above the mark in ability to make the grade; 25 made it, but while 5 should be on the "A" roll and 18 on the "B," only Ann Cole made all "A's," and 24 made the merit roll. Here too, coasting is indicated.

Listed on the "B" merit roll are Louella Bailey, Carolyn Barton, Lucille Bright, Billie Brown, Mary Carhoun, Mary Margaret Daniels, Johnny Graves, Jean Harris, Sandra Hobbs, Terrell Martin, Polly McCormick, Judy McDowell, Dennis Paddie, Judy Perrell, Kay Potter, Linda Purdie, Joyce Riley, Lynda Rogers, Mary Sanford, Jimmy Tate, Elaine Thomason, Judy Weaver, Lynda Webb, and Betty Wheelington.

The 10th grade comes nearest to living up to expectations; 12 made the honor roll, while 16 have the ability for making "A's," and 28 had "B" averages, while 23 are capable. This shows that few of the students making "B's" are loafing and a little more effort will help make the sophomores a justly proud class.

These 12 students are Carole Coop, Cecilia Cox, Sharon Foster, Cecilia Godwin, Sherie Hankins, Cynthia Harrison, Georgeanne Lowe, Sandra Russell, Sue Ann Smith, Barbara Kaye Thompson, Edwina Whitman, Carolyn Yarborough.

The "B" merit roll are Shirley Allen, Gilbert Brown, Patsy Burroughs, George McGill, Marjorie Peck, Eddie King, Julia Burton Peck, Nancy Reese, Byron Smith, Suzanne Sommerville, William Walden, Johnny Watkins, Billie Jean Wilkinson, and Judy Kaye Wright.

No test results are available on the 9th grade so only time will tell if they are putting all their efforts into their work.

Making the "A" honor roll were Curtis Churchwell, Sharon Feilding, Peggy Sue Lloyd and Quincia Miers.

On the "B" merit roll are Linda Aaron, Pamela Aslin, Tilman Bearden, Betty Blackwood, Charles Brown, Barbara Caston, Billy Duke, Judith Easterling, Phillip Gilliam, Denny Hefner, William Hinkle, Sharon House, Virginia Sue Kinsey, Wendell Light, Jimmy McBay, Wendell Messer, Mary Lou Park, Helen Ruth Ramsey, Carol Rowe, Dorothy Smith, Shirley Sundberg, Sherry Taber, Tonna Taylor, Jimmy Thomas, Linda Thrash, Judy Vines, Billy Frank Walters, Ford Ward, Joan Willis, Katherine Whitton.

The eighth grade leads the Junior High "A" honor roll for the first nine weeks having six listed, while the seventh grade had five who made all "A" honor roll in the eighth were Mary Virginia Bowden, Sue Griffin, Shirley Hartfield, Jan Reinhardt, Barbara Wester, and William Tyler. The five making the "A" honor roll in the seventh were Mary Alice Caston, Jan Ellis, Sharon Kay Green, Jean Page and Barbara Reese.

To be placed on the merit roll, you must make the minimum of 90 honor points. The seventh grade leads the merit roll, having 50 students including Charles Anderson, Mickey Bader, Glenda Eaye, Joy Ann Davis, Mary Frances Field, Vince Foster, Patricia Godwin, Jane Griggs, Mike Hudspeth, Mary Jackson, Linda Gail Johnson, Dora Ann King, Jeanie Lowe, Ruth Ann Mahon, Janice Martin, Carolyn McMillan, Barbara O'Steen, Tommy Power, Kendall Yocum, David Waddle, David Warren, Janet Terrell, Patsy Smith, Karen Ann Sheppard, Patricia Rogers, Sonya Yates, Carolyn Rogers, and John Schooley.

The eighth grade placed 21 on the "B" merit roll.

Those meeting the requirements were Roy Allison, Andrea Anwey, Suzanne Booth, Judy Boswell, Betty Bryant, Bobby Burns, Mike Byrd, Ginger Church, Marguerite Ellis, Millis Flowers, Andrie Foster, Rennie Franks, Tommy Hollis, James House, Felix McCellan, Cherry Myers, Charles Moore, Tena Pilkinton, Joe Rogers, Mary Ann Russell, and Teresa Tullis.

States' Rights Called for Consideration

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Gov. Thomas B. Stanley of Virginia today called for consideration of states' rights in a speech before the board of managers of the Council of State Governments.

This is Stanley's farewell session as president of the Council, an arm of the National Governors Conference.

Stanley said he came from the South "where we are faced with grave problems in regard to the operation of our public schools." He said he was not asking for a discussion of the segregation question, or for his listeners to "agree with our thinking on this particular question."

"I do invite you to consider carefully and maturely the question of the division of federal and state authority," he said in his prepared speech.

"We who are faced now with issues arising directly from the usurpation of states rights, seek only to impress upon the nation that similar problems may arise in other states and in other regions unless the growing practice of the Supreme Court of the United States to legislate, rather than adjudicate, is curbed and the laws are interpreted in accordance with the express provisions of the Constitution and the statutes, instead of according to sociological or psychological prelections."

He said aside from national defense, he could conceive of no issue of greater importance to the welfare of the country than the question of adherence to the principles set forth in the Constitution.

Stanley said every indication pointed to strong support for proposals to increase the rate of spending for missiles and related defense purposes. In his judgment, he said, that any additional needs for defense should be met by economies and cutbacks in other phases of the government's operations.

GOP Committee in Closed Meet

Aides of Chairman Charles S. Thomas said one fund-raising drive will be launched Jan. 20 with a series of dinners honoring GOP members of Congress and office holders.

The Southern hero is just one of many well-known historical figures which will be represented at the new museum, scheduled to open in February. Ranging from Christopher Columbus to Harry Truman, the lifelike models are made with a secret vinyl plastic-wax formula which, according to Dorfman, "even feels alive."

80 MILES TO THE GALLON—A tiny auto that's obviously the object of their affection is examined by two French firemen at the Paris Motor Show. One of the smallest in the show, it is the French-made Roller. The tiny vehicle can reach a speed of 45 m.p.h. and gets about 80 miles to a gallon of gasoline.

Danes Send Letters to Royal Library

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor
If you ever get a love letter from a famous Dane, you might as well accept the fact that a carbon copy has gone to the Danish Royal Library.

This was just one of the interesting bits of incidental information acquired by fashion illustrator Dagmar Freuchen during the 12 eventful years of her marriage to the late Peter Freuchen, a famous and famous on TV's the bearded Danish explorer who 84,000 Question and whose last book, "Peter Freuchen's Book of the Seven Seas," has just been published posthumously.

"Peter wrote wonderful letters," says the dark-eyed, dynamic Dagmar, also a Dane, who has won a reputation as one of America's top fashion illustrators. "When ever he was away on one of his many trips he would write ever day, giving me sort of a continued story of his adventures. And of course he always sent a copy to the Royal Library. No, it didn't seem to cramp his style at all—all these famous Danes do it, you know. And it's quite all right, because the letters are never opened until 50 years after the death of the writer."

Dagmar studied art in Europe before coming to New York to make good in the ranks of high fashion. Her first husband was killed in World War II while in the Pacific theater with the United States Army. She met Freuchen on Christmas Eve, 1944, at the New York home of mutual Danish friends and they were married the following June.

Freuchen's first wife was an Eskimo, whom he met during his 14-year stay in Greenland. A daughter by the first marriage is now a well-known writer of children's books in Denmark, and a close friend of Dagmar.

Rudolf Friml to Celebrate by Improvising

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — Tomorrow Rudolf Friml celebrates another birthday and he'll spend it as he has most of his life—improvising.

The survivor of the Herbert Friml-Rosenberg trio of operatic composers, the Czech-born musician is listed by most authorities as 73. He doesn't really know, but suspects he is older.

"Recently I got a letter from a man in Prague who said he couldn't get records of 'Donkey Serenade' (which Friml hated) and others of my songs," he said. "I told him I would send him some if he would look up the official records and see how old I am."

"I hope it turns out I am 95. It would be nice to know I feel so good at such an age!"

There can be no doubt that he feels good. He had just returned to his cliff-hanging Hollywood Hills home from a massage and steam bath on the Sunset Strip. He told of his Palm Desert home where he does gymnastics and rides his bicycle. He displayed a leg, wound inflicted by an unfriendly chow dog on a recent bike jaunt.

It's music that seems to keep him young. The Chinese-decorated, incense-scented home, where he lives with his Chinese wife, is filled with sheet music and recordings of piano pieces. Friml has improvised. He sits at his grand piano for hours, pouring out the music that is in his head.

"Sometimes I think some long-dead composer is using me to get rid of the music he never wrote," Friml sighed. "Perhaps it is Chopin. I am very much like Chopin."

He said that he might be wandering through the Farmer's Market humming a tune and someone will comment that he appears happy. "I am in pain," the composer replies, and the pain doesn't cease until he gets the tune out on the piano.

Turnpike Chairmen Stranded by Snow

READING, Pa. — The acting chairman of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, Joseph J. Lawler, was stranded in a snow-drift on his superhighway last night.

Lawler, who announced recently that the turnpike is ready for a snowy winter, was driving to Albany, N.Y., for a meeting with officials of the New York State Thruway.

The subject of their discussion is to "Snow Removal."

Lawler made his way to a turnpike maintenance building and reported his plight. He moved on after the toll road was cleared.

Ed Wynne, the noted comedian who recently became a successful actor in serious roles, has turned aside all stage, screen, television, literary offers to tell his life story. "I haven't lived it yet," he replied.

No Brakes, So He Couldn't Stop

LOS ANGELES — The judge read the police report concerning a man before him on a reckless driving charge.

"Driving 90 miles an hour," read the report. "Chased about a mile."

"Why didn't you stop?" Municipal Judge Thomas L. Griffith Jr. asked.

"Could you, your honor?" replied "Buckley" 23. "I didn't have any brakes."

"Five days and $50," said the judge.

Where Do We Get Money for Missiles

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK — Where to get the money to pay for a stepped-up defense program is the question splitting public opinion today. The seriousness of the missile age isn't questioned, nor is the need for more defense spending. The debate is over raising the money.

One group favors hiking the federal debt limit above the present 275 billion dollars and borrowing more money, despite the admittedly inflationary results.

The other, particularly strong in financial circles, favors paying for more defense measures by economizing on other governmental programs.

Cutting back on these domestic spending programs will raise howls from those who believe that welfare spending isn't as big as it should be, anyway.

The economy group in rebuttal will point to what inflation already has done to the spending power of your dollar.

The inflationary threat arises because the administration would like to spend about two billion dollars more on defense and half a billion more on foreign aid.

The U.S. Treasury is already bumping the federal debt ceiling. Further, it faces the gloomy prospect that if a business recession deepens, both corporate and individual incomes will be smaller and income tax collections will shrink.

The Treasury, asked to spend more and facing a revenue drought, will have to turn to deficit financing—that is, operate in the red and pay its bills by borrowing, mainly from the commercial banks. This is where classic inflation starts.

The Guaranty Trust of New York in its December survey of business finds "There is too much reason to fear that the way which the nation will actually take will be the inflationary way."

But it warns that "lasting military strength cannot be built upon a shaky economic foundation" and holds that "inflation can defeat the cause of freedom as decisively as can enemy missiles."

U.S. Undecided on What to Start First

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON — Defense officials are trying to decide whether to race Russia for a prestige-establishing "first" in some flyable kind of atomic plane, or take more time to create on military strength.

A decision must be made in the next few months, it was said in responsible quarters today.

Some experts think any nuclear plane that could be built now would be too heavy and to slow for bombing. But they concede that even if it weren't the best, the first such plane would add to prestige.

The situation confronting the United States now is like that which it faced in the satellite program. The choice there was to keep the Vanguard satellite project on a simon-pure scientific basis with almost no relation to the military missile front, Russia, making the military choice, won that race.

Looking still further ahead toward the time of warfare in space, the Pentagon will set up sometime this month a new "Advance Research Projects Agency."

Headed by a civilian, the function of that upper echelon agency will be to define and develop future weapons which the individual services

...about Moons and Ministers

This is the day of man-made moons and other outer-space objects. First man reached for the clouds, then the stratosphere and now he is reaching for the moon. The very thought of these accomplishments "rattles" our nerves, makes us weak and an unexplainable nausea sets in. We think what next? But only one thing we know. God said, "Be ready, for we know not the day nor the hour." The day may be near when your account will be checked. Your record will reveal what your interests have been. Whether you have supported His church or helped a needy soul will be made known. Above, you see a severe storm with broken clouds lighted by lightning flashes. But what makes it worse . . . there goes a man-made moon. All this strange phenomenon makes it very clear that we should be about the Master's business . . . we should be ready . . . we should attend church.

YOU IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN YOU

Character is a by-product of the church. It is here that young and old alike are showered with benedictions that fortify and influence for a better citizenship and a stronger democracy. In the church the ministerial are molding religious character. Statesmen today declare that the church alone can furnish leadership to handle the affairs of state in these perilous times. Then we with our children should go to the church of our choice on Sunday. "You in the Church and the Church in you" form a combination for good. Be a regular CHURCHGOER and a daily BIBLE READER.
